RECENT TECHNOLOGY TREND

So what should you choose – Arduino or Raspberry Pi?

Arduino is a simple microcontroller while Raspberry Pi is actually a small computer. Arduino has only 2 kilobytes of RAM. Raspberry Pi has a RAM size of 1 GB. So, Arduino can be used for a simple solution for frequently repeated activities like controlling the watering of the garden, switching on and off the external lighting at a specific time, opening/closing the gate, etc.

On the other hand, as Raspberry can run many tasks at the same time, it is a computer and can manage simultaneously works e.g. Home weather stations as it needs to collect information from several sensors (temperature, wind strength, humidity). Raspberry Pi can also be a good choice for anyone interested in IoT, i.e. the Internet of Things at home.
